

Hua Mulan Performed by Liaoning Ballet of China
One Performance Only
August 28, 2019, 7:00 PM at the Merriam Theater, 250 S. Broad Street, Philadelphia, PA

Prepared to be wowed by the visually stunning, artistic acrobatic, and beautifully choreographed ballet rendition of the Chinese classic Mulan (Hua Mulan). Introducing Liaoning Ballet of China to Philadelphia with their original production, featuring one of the most famous hero in ancient China.

Hua Mulan is a historic role model, especially for Chinese women. She disguised herself as a male to join the army, in place of her aging father. Shedding the traditional roles of Chinese daughters, Hua Mulan was skilled in martial arts, sword fighting, and archery. She fought for her country, for her family's honor, and fought social stigma. Ultimately she revealed herself as a woman and inspired her army. Hua Mulan represents bravery and strength for female warriors of past and present.

Wai Man is an advocate for breast cancer awareness in the Chinese community. She is hoping that this experience will connect with audiences of all cultural backgrounds and promote empowerment within individuals. On behalf of the Chinese Cultural Art Media Communication Center Association, Wai Man would like to continue to share more cultural experiences and promote breast cancer awareness with these events throughout and beyond the city of Philadelphia.

Liaoning Ballet of China, one of China's most famous ballet ensembles, has dedicated over 35 years to producing new Chinese cultural works and performing beloved ballet classics.

So, gather your friends and family at the Merriam Theater for a great time and for a great cause on August 28, 2019. Tickets for Hua Mulan may be purchased at www.kimmelcenter.org or by calling 215-893-1999. Use the code "PINK" at checkout to receive a 10% discount. 10% of ticket sales with code "PINK" will be donated to Susan G. Komen Philadelphia to continue the fight to end breast cancer.